Relocation America advertises with America's Largest Rural Lender.

American Executive magazine will feature an article on a national Rural Banking Service Company in their September 2010 issue. The company has invited their business partners to advertise inside the Company's spotlight.

The goal of this multi-page feature dedicated to the Rural Banking Company is to highlight accomplishments and successes in the marketplace through implementation of effective executive strategies/business partnerships.

The feature will be published in the bi-monthly publication and in digital format as the article will be housed on the website for 12 months as well. To give you a better insight of the digital version of American Executive Magazine, go to...

<http://www.americanexecutive.com/index.php>

The article will be very extensive with full color photography and will be composed of the accomplishments, investments, growth, supply chain management and the future direction of Banking Service Company.

Relocation America will receive added exposure from promoting their own company's services within the feature article about the Rural Banking Service Company.
